Daniel Alley was born in Anchorage, Alaska. He received his BFA in ceramics from Washington State University in 2003 and his MFA in glass from Tulane University in 2014. Dan frequently exhibits work throughout the city, including the New Orleans Museum of Art, the Contemporary Art Center, Good Children, and The Front. His playful yet intellectual mixed-media sculptures combine his knowledge of material processes with an interest in history and science. As owner and operator of Denali Art Solutions, Dan now dedicates most of his time and knowledge in assisting museums, galleries, and artists from around the world with their custom art fabrication, installations, and logistical needs.
