A LOOK AT FALL 2019

PROFESSOR AMBIKAIPAER FEATURED ON PBS

Professor Ambikaipaker appeared on the Emmy-nominated PBS Show Blackademics, which was screened nationally from Summer-Fall of 2019. Ambikaipaker spoke on the topic of Political Blackness in Multiracial Britain, which is also the title of his recent book. To see his talk, click here.

GET TO KNOW NEW FACULTY

Professor Chen is a new assistant professor with the Communications Department. He studies the integration of cinema into the everyday functioning of institutions and its societal consequences, as well as modern China, researching the impact of cultural forms. To read more, click here.

Dr. Shehram Mokhtar is a visiting professor with a Ph.D. in Media Studies from the University of Oregon and will be a faculty member at Tulane for the 2019-2020 school year. To read more, click here.

OFF - CAMPUS LEARNING EXPERIENCES

Last semester, Professor Mokhtar took his class to the Living Museum located in the lower 9th ward of the city. Students looked at the exhibit in this community-run, open-access (free) space. Click here to read more.

In Fall 2019, Professor Humphreys took her Cross-Cultural Analysis class on a field trip to the Whitney Plantation Historic District. Whitney “is the only plantation museum in the region with an exclusive focus on slavery,” according to their website. Click here to read more.
